COUNTY HOME PLANS ACCEPTED AND ADDITIONS MAY BE MADE

Project Now Will be Up to May Grand Jury for Approval or Disapproval

NEW WINGS TO COST $50,000

Provisions May be Made, if Present Plans are Carried Out For Caring For the County's Insane—Many Architects Submit Plans.

Fifty thousand dollars will be spent in addition to the County home, including the erection likely of a hospital for the insane, if plans outlined by the county commissioners, poor directors and county controller are approved by the May grand jury. The plans of Frank McCrooks, architect of McDonald have been accepted providing for two new wings to be erected at the present County home at Arden.

If the May grand jury approves the acceptance of the plans, and the outline of the county officials, the money will be raised by bond issue for the work.

The plans accepted call for the erection of two annexes, one at either side of the present buildings. They will be connected up by arch ways with the present building. The annexes will be two stories in height with large basements. Each building will accommodate about 72 inmates or 144 in both. The buildings will be fire proof, so far as it is possible to erect them such. Each building will be properly equipped for taking care of the inmates, with hospitals, lounging rooms, toilets and other necessary conveniences. It is believed that with these annexes the crowded condition at the home will be relieved.

Other architects submitted plans, providing for the county officials did not want to exceed $50,000 in expenditures. It is believed that with the spending of a little more money later the old building may be put in shape for proper occupancy for a number of years to come. The plans include arrangements for caring for the county's insane.

INCREASE IN MINING OPERATIONS REPORTED

Demand Improving Among the Iron and Steel Mills—Stock of Coal to be Laid up in Anticipation of Labor Disputes Next Year

More coal miners are at work in the Pittsburg fields this week than for months previous. From a basis of not more than 30 per cent in January the coal mines are now producing coal at nearly 50 per cent of capacity and are slowly increasing as the season advances and demand improves among the iron and steel mills and lake markets.

The larger coal shippers Wednesday said the lake season, which means so much for Pittsburg coal operators, will not resume until late this summer. They say it is doubtful if a real serious movement to the north west markets will begin before July 1. When it starts, however it is predicted it will be a very heavy one.

Next year wage scales for all coal fields in the country will come up for settlement. As this usually means a suspension of mining for a time reserve coal will be in general demand for the spring.

Coal operators said Wednesday the coal fields would be seriously affected by the European war should business resume suddenly. Not 75 per cent of the miners are available for a full operation of the mines. No immigration for more than a year has taken place to provide new material for working the mines and thousands of the old miners have returned to their native lands.

VACUUM SYSTEM CAUSES POWER HOUSE TROUBLE

West Penn Electric Company Suffers at Plant at Connellsville and so Do Users of Their Brand of Electricity.

The vacuum system of the West Penn Electric company at Connellsville went on the blink Wednesday afternoon and this morning and as a result users of electricity from this source had merely a vacuum for light and power here. Wednesday afternoon and this morning.

Poor coal and insufficient steam pressure were blamed at previous periods for poor electricity when the power was light. Wednesday afternoon was the first time for the power to fail entirely. Though the word given out at the local plant was not enlightening it was learned this morning that the vacuum had fallen asleep or off its chair or something like that at the plant where power is manufactured.

The vacuum is an essential process in the condensation of waste steam. Officials explain that it is necessary to preserve this vacuum of the escaping steam is to be turned into water for the boilers. Once the vacuum gets lost—mislaid as it were—the boilers are put out of commission through a scarcity of water. This was the trouble so far as one uninformed technically can describe it.

NEW MOVING CENSORSHIP BILL INTRODUCED; OTHER KNOCKED

Latest is Introduced at Behest of State Censor—Repeal Measure Negatived by Committee.

A bill providing for the repeal of the present moving picture censorship law and creating a new one was introduced in the state senate Wednesday by Senator Daix of Philadelphia. Mr. Daix said the bill was handed to him for presentation by J. Louis Breiteinger, the present censor, who told the senator that the new bill has the approval of the governor and the attorney general.

The bill to repeal the state moving picture censorship was reported negatively by the house committee on judiciary general. Five other bills were negatived by various committees and 35 favorably reported.

NUMBER OF INSANE IN THE STATE INCREASES

Harrison Drug Law Prohibiting Handling of Dangerous Concoctions Except in Specific Cases Said to Have Had Results Unlooked For.

The Harrison Federal Drug act has increased the number of insane patients in the hospitals of the state by over 300 in the past few weeks, it was asserted by members of the board of administration at a legislature hearing at Harrisburg. The board has asked for an $11,066,222 appropriation for the 20 state charitable institutions for the next two years. Part of this sum, it was declared, is needed to care for an expected increase in the number of insane persons during the next two years.

One of them is to appropriate $35,000 for use of the board in carrying out its projects and the others introduced in the senate by Senator Jos. H. Thompson are for the enabling act for the issuing of bonds and the other making important changes in the canal law of 1913. By the latter the depth would be altered.

APRIL FOOL DAY WITNESSES NUMEROUS FLITTINGS IN TOWN

MOTORISTS MUST GO SLOW NOW IN MONESSEN; BURGESS ORDERS

Neighboring Town Follows Example Set By Charleroi—Doctors Claimed to be Notable Offenders.

Following the example set by Charleroi, Burgess A. G. Dunlap, at Monessen, has begun the enforcement strictly of the state laws and borough ordinances regulating the operation of automobiles and motor cycles. Burgess Dunlap is of the opinion that Monessen streets should not be made testing ground, and Chief John Wheatley with his men will look after the regulation of traffic. It is reported that some of the worst offenders at Monessen of the speed laws have been doctors, who seemingly consider that a Red Cross sign on their machines gives them special privileges.

On Monday the Marianna mines of the Pittsburg-Buffalo coal company resumed operations, giving employment to 500 men. This number is being increased day by day. The plant has been idle for six months.

VAUDEVILLE AT THE PALACE TONIGHT

Many Highly Piled Wagons and Trucks Give Indication of Movings

SEEMS A NECESSARY EVIL

Annual Agony Costly. But it Provides Living for Rag Man, and Enables Families to Get Houses With Different Exposure.

Many of Charleroi's families awakened this morning either with the feeling that they were inhabitants of a strange and not always and altogether pleasing land, or else that they were Belgians in a wrecked and desolate waste. Then they approached the realization that it was no April fool of a joke, but that they had either moved or were mightily close to the time of flitting.

Moving day is any day this week, a fact proven by the sights of numerous highly piled wagons and trucks. Once more houses were or are being scientifically dismantled and their Lares and Penates, as one expresses it, carted to another altar with more or less ceremony and confusion.

Moving, seemingly from the numerous evidences of it, is a necessary evil. Without it one could not exchange a cold and draughty house with a southern exposure for another cold and draughty house with the windows facing the west. If it were not for the movings each spring many an old rag man would die of starvation, while the few husbands and some who escape spring cleaning with its attendant horrors by the more drastic but quicker dose of moving would be forced to join that great and silent majority which goes into oblivion each March and April during the house cleaning process. As it is, they frequently choose to move and be torn up for one week rather than to not move and prolong the agony for a month. Incidentally under the present financial conditions, moving has been added to the high cost of living, which makes it all the greater an evil even though necessary.

COUNTIES MAY JOIN IN ERECTION OF WORKHOUSE

Plans to be Considered by County Commissioners—Prisoners to Work To Pay Expenses of Care.

A joint meeting of the county commissioners representing Washington, Fayette, Westmoreland and probably Cambria and Somerset counties will be called in the near future to consider plans looking toward the building of a Union workhouse. The plan has been briefly discussed by the commissioners of Westmoreland, Fayette and Washington counties.

If a Union workhouse is built prisoners will be compelled to work to earn something toward paying the expense of caring for them while in prison. It is also probable that there would be a balance which could be used toward paying for the buildings.

HE HAS THE RIGHT IDEA

Judge Porter has let it be known that Lawrence county will not countenance the driving of automobiles by intoxicated persons. A few days ago a man appeared before him charged with this offense and very briefly the local jurist passed sentence. The man is now serving his sentence and has probably realized by this time the error of his ways, is the comment made by the New Castle Herald.

There is no doubt that a drunken man at the steering wheel of an automobile is a potential force for damage. The opportunity for him to endanger life is practically as great as though he were driving a locomotive. To be sure he might not have the safety of a great number of passengers in his keeping but numerous pedestrians are at his mercy.

There are many owners of automobiles who think that they are privileged characters. Their attitude changes entirely when they seat themselves on a cushioned seat grasp a steering wheel and place their feet upon a clutch. Many of them then consider themselves superior beings. Then add to that feeling of exuberation a liberal cargo of liquor and you have a dangerous citizen.

We congratulate Judge Porter for his action in this respect. That he has the interest of the unprotected at heart and that justice is one of his crowning virtues, is most evident.

HEADING OFF THE GRIP.

The grip season is here and half of the town seems to be suffering from it or sympathizing with the other half.

Grip is largely a weather production physician inform us Damp, foggy weather and sudden changes in the temperature are first aids in spreading the bacillus of grip, which thrives on blood alone. Sunny, dry days and lots of fresh air and outdoor exercises will do more toward heading off the ravages of the disease than all the medicine ever concocted.

Grip is a native of Russia, says an exchange. It immigrated into this country along about 1889 and immediately made itself at home. Like the English sparrow, it has been a nuisance ever since, for it is not only an unwelcome visitor but it has been a source of irritating vexation to bacteriologists, who, as yet have not been successful in diagnosing it or combating it. Serums have been offered, but none of them ever amounted to anything.

As a rule, grip is not fatal, but it is decidedly unpleasant and increases the mortality in other diseases, including measels, whooping cough and bronchitis.

The New York department of health says:

"Grip is easier to get than pneumonia. Men are more liable than women. People are likely to have grip if they live in rooms full of stale, used up air. Grip tackles a man when he is run down or has been carelessly exposed to bad weather.

"The symptoms are 'weeping,' with fever and deep seated aching of the bones and joints. Victims often say they feel as if their bones are breaking at the joints. The disease runs no definite course and unlike pneumonia, it subsides gradually. Pneumonia stops quickly at the crisis."

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The following letter was written to a friend here by a marine on the United States Steamer Minnesota, now located at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

"I am sorry to write you this letter for fear of annoying you, but the time has come when I must ask your judgment on a very serious question, the contemplation of which has caused me many nights of restlessness and corresponding days of anxiety. You will understand my writing you regarding a matter of so much importance when I tell you that many homes and as many lives have been upset by similar troubles. Still I feel that you should know the worst at once, for in all sincerity, it may mean life and death to me. I do not dare communicate the state of my mind to any of my friends but you, for they are not to be relied upon. So in my hour of distress and perturbation of mind, I can only go to you. I know I am asking a great deal of you, but your friendship warrants it, and in deciding this most serious question, lay aside friendship and loyalty and tell me from the fullness of your heart, and the broad expanses of your educated mind, is it time to put on summer underwear. Now is it?"

Patrick Harrigan had never had the advantages of education, but like most men in similar circumstances, he was determined that his children should acquire the learning and grace which had been denied him. In due time his daughter, Molly, entered college. One day shortly afterward he asked. "An' phwat are ye learnin' now, Molly?"

"Today," said Molly, thinking to have a bit of fun with Patrick, "we studied the law of compensation."

"Compensation? What's that?"

"It is hard to explain, but it's something like this: If your sense of smell is poor, the sense of taste is all the sharper; and if you are blind you can hear all the better."

Patrick reflected. "Sure," said he. "I see. It's loike this: Fer example if a man is born wid wan leg shorter than the other, the other is longer."

JOHN MUIR AND TREES.

The Great Naturalist's Plea For the Preservation of Forests.

Few men loved and knew trees better than John Muir, the naturalist of the Sierras. He fought hard to preserve the forests, and in one of his books he says:

All sort of local laws and regulations have been tried and found wanting, and the costly lessons of our own experience as well as that of every civilized nation show conclusively that the fate of the remnant of our forests is in the hands of the federal government and that if the remnant is to be saved at all it must be saved quickly.

Any fool can destroy trees. They cannot run away, and if they could they would still be destroyed—chased and hunted down as long as fun or a dollar could be got out of theirturk bides, branching horns or magnificent bole backbones. Few that fell trees plant them. Nor would planting avail much toward getting back anything like the noble primeval forests. During a man's life only saplings can be grown in the place of the old trees—tens of centuries old—that have been destroyed. It took more than 3,000 years to make some of the trees in these western woods—trees that are still standing in perfect strength and beauty, waving and surging in the mighty forests of the Sierra.

Through all the wonderful eventful centuries since Christ's time—and long before that—God has cared for these trees, saved them from drought, disease, avalanches and a thousand straining, leveling tempests and floods, but he cannot save them from fools. Only Uncle Sam can do that.

AN ARCTIC DRAMA.

Playing to the Coldest House Known In Theatrical History.

Many and many a play has had a chilly reception. But imagine what it must have been to witness a play or to be an actor therein in a temperature 25 degrees below zero. It was a company of American sailors who made the record of playing to "the coldest house" known in dramatic history.

Dr. Kane, the famous arctic explorer, told an audience at old Masonic hall along in the fifties of a play given at an exceedingly low temperature by the crew of one of the ships on the 14th of February, 1851. The play was the farce called "The Mysteries and Miseries of New York."

The outside temperature was 30 degrees below zero. In the "theater" it was 25 degrees below behind the scenes and 20 degrees below where the audience was seated. One of the sailors had to enact the part of a damsel with bare arms, and when a cold flatiron, one of the properties, touched his skin the sensation was that of a hot iron.

On Washington's birthday the crew had another performance. Outside the ship's thermometer was 46 degrees below zero. Inside, by the aid of lamps, it was only 30 degrees below zero. "The condensation," said Dr. Kane, "was so excessive that we could barely see the performers. They walked in a cloud of vapor. Volumes of smoke accompanied all vehemence of delivery. Their hands steamed. When an actor took off his coat it smoked like a dish of potatoes."—Indianapolis News.

The Practice of Kicking.

Kicking, like charity, should begin at home. It ought to be the duty of everybody at home to object, persistently and effectively, to the specific overcrowded street car, the badly paved road, the encroaching doorstep, the neglected yard, the malodorous cesspool, the irresponsible motorcar and the reckless railroad—especially if he have any personal part in the maintenance of similar abuses. If the tendency of these evils were rightly apprehended, if a part only of the effort that is expended presumably in objecting to the generalized, foreign and futile subjects were bestowed on specific and tangible details, if we would forego the emotional pleasure of the impersonal "muckrake" to assail the evil at our very feet—especially if each one of us were careful to avoid offense in matters of the same kind—our country would surely be a much fairer one.—Unpopular Review.

No Accent.

Many stories are told of a former Canadian bishop who had passed his youth in Scotland, but flattered himself that not a hint of his origin could be gained from his speech or manner.

One day he met a Scotchman, to whom he said at last abruptly, "Hoo lang hae ye been here?"

"Aboot sax years," was the reply.

"Hoot, mon!" said the bishop sharply. "Why hae ye na lost yer accent, like mysel'?"

When Astronomy Was Young.

The ancients called Venus by the name of Hesperus when she was evening star and by the name of Phosphorus when she was morning star, for until her motions were studied it was not known that the two stars were one and the same planet.

Coin Abrasion.

By mere waste caused by coins rubbing one against another the civilized world, it is said, loses one ton and a quarter of gold and eighty-eight tons of silver annually.

Japan and the Figure 4.

There are no fours nor 44's in Japanese telephone directories because the names of the figure four—shi—is the term for death.

Boys in forming life attachments should not overlook the association of that fellow Will Power.—Omaha Bee.

JAPANESE COURT TRIALS.

The Judges, Not the Lawyers, Question the Witnesses.

The defendant in a Japanese court was testifying in his own behalf. He stood directly in front of the presiding judge, not ten feet distant from him, and answered his questions in a clear voice, without any apparent hesitation. The judge seemed conversant with the case, for he put questions rapidly, giving a funny little grunt of acquiescence after every answer. Occasionally one of the associates wrote a suggestion and handed it to the president, and once or twice the defendant's counsel asked the court to put a certain inquiry. The whole proceeding—and the same may be said of those in several other courts I visited—was conducted in a quiet, colloquial way. In every instance I was impressed with the simple, businesslike atmosphere.

Some of the Japanese lawyers with whom I have talked say that they feel that very often the court does not elicit all the facts and that our system of having witnesses questioned by counsel would be better, but, on the other hand, some lawyers maintain that better results are realized by the system, which puts upon the court the duty of getting at the truth, maintaining that the witnesses are more apt to talk frankly to the court than to the lawyer for the opposite side who is engaged, as they think, in trying to make them out liars.

I came away quite favorably impressed with what I saw and wondering whether on the whole in 95 per cent of the cases a decision by three judges trained in the investigation of facts would not be as nearly right as the verdict of twelve citizens casually gathered in from the general community.—George W. Wickersham in Case and Comment.

COAXING THE FURNACE.

Try Gentleness and the Uplift and Kindly, Soothing Words.

Treat your furnace kindly. Let your watchwords as a furnace tender be gentleness and uplift. Be firm with your furnace, but always gentle. Some persons imagine that the way to make a furnace behave properly is to first shake it violently and then maul the life out of the remaining coals with the poker. They try chastisement when they should try gentleness and uplift and only succeed in packing the coal harder and destroying ventilation, the secret of successful furnace tending.

Nothing responds more readily to uplift than does a furnace fire. When in the early morning you wish to arouse the furnace fire from its slumbers, you should first shake it gently, then gently tickle the ribs of the grate with the poker to make ventilation more perfect and then crack the top crust with a lever-like uplifting use of the poker. In a minute the fire will be wide awake and in good humor, laughing and sticking out its rongues of flame at you in merriment.

Never swear at your furnace, no matter how it annoys you. That will make it sulky and obstinate. You never saw a furnace which was sworn at often which was not frequently sulky and obstinate. Now, did you? It is advisable to take the directly opposite tack. I know a man who always addresses his furnace as "sweetheart" or "darling," and he assures me the plan works to perfection. "Maybe it doesn't really make the furnace warm up the way it seems to," he frankly admits, "but the mere suggestion just keeps me from losing my temper and hammering my fire to pieces. But, anyway, the results are excellent. Savvy?"—Lee Shippey in Judge.

Aisle on the Car In a Wreck.

A veteran railroad man gave a piece of valuable advice not long ago.

"If you ever get into a wreck," he said, "and have time to follow out this suggestion, remember this: Always stand in the aisle. Most of the injuries that are suffered occur because the victim is crushed between the seats. If you are in the aisle you may be thrown forward and bruised a little, but there is much less chance of receiving serious hurts. It isn't always possible to get out of your seat before the crash comes, but if it is follow that advice."—Pittsburgh Press.

Dome of the Rock.

The name "Dome of the Rock" is one that has been conferred on the celebrated mosque of Omar, at Jerusalem. It stands on Mount Moriah, on the site once occupied by the temple of Solomon. Immediately under its dome an irregular shaped rock projects above the pavement. This rock was the scene of many Scriptural events and has been greatly revered for ages by Jews and Mohammedans.

Tools, Not Toys.

Flimmer—Met Umson downtown today. He'd just bought a tin horn, a triangle, some blocks, a rattle box, some sleigh bells and a popgun. I didn't know he had a baby. Flamson—He hasn't. He's a vaudeville trap drummer. Those things are part of his outfit.—Puck.

They Were Not.

A young clergyman, small of stature, preaching as a candidate in a certain place one Sabbath, peering over the pulpit Bible, announced as his text: "It is I. Be not afraid."

Arab Horse Test.

A good horse, according to an Arab test, is one that can stand perfectly erect upon his legs when drinking from a shallow pool.

As we grow less young the hills grow less old.—Bacon.

BAYONET CHARGES.

Hand to Hand Conflicts Are Rare Upon the Field of Battle.

In a talk about military methods in warfare General Stephen M. Weld, in discussing stories of bayonet charges said:

"I do not know of a single case in our war where bayonets were actually crossed. I heard of one or two, but I never happened to see one.

"In the numerous charges made by our corps in the Wilderness campaign the only one we ever made successfully was on the 17th of June. One division had already charged and been repulsed. Our division was then ordered to make a charge across a plain some 200 yards wide. Colonel Gould had command of the division, which placed the brigade in my hands.

"Before charging the men were ordered to remove the caps from their guns and when they did charge were told to fire it like blazes, which they did. In almost no time we were over the 200 yards, subjected to a storm of shell and canister and only one volley from the infantry in the enemy's trenches. One-half of the men in our regiment were lost in this charge.

"Here was a case where you would suppose we might have crossed bayonets. On the contrary, the Confederates fled, the same as we would have done had we been attacked. We captured their knapsacks and everything they had in the trenches just as they were."—Exchange.

A FAMOUS DETECTIVE.

Vidocq Was a Notorious Thief Before He Joined the Police.

Modern detectives, as a rule, are fitted for their work by a long course of police training. But not so Vidocq, the great French detective, who was born in Arras in 1775. He began life as a baker and early became the terror of his companions by his athletic frame and violent disposition. At the same time he was a notorious thief, and after many disgraceful adventures he enlisted in the army.

In 1796 he returned to Paris with some money, which, however, he soon squandered. Next he was sentenced at Lille to eight years' hard labor for forgery, but repeatedly escaped, and in 1808 he became connected with the Paris police as a detective.

His previous career enabled him to render important services, and he was appointed chief of the safety brigade, chiefly composed of reprieved convicts, which purged Paris of the many dangerous classes. In 1818 he received a "full pardon," and his connection with this service lasted until about 1823, when he settled at St. Maude as a paper manufacturer.

Soon after the revolution of 1830 he became a political detective, but with little success. In 1848 he was again employed under the republican government, but he died penniless in 1857. —London Standard.

Queer Pronunciations.

There are many names of places in England that puzzle the stranger. Happisburgh, in Norfolk, for instance, is pronounced "Hazeboro." Abergavenny simply drops a syllable and becomes "Abergenny," and it is alleged that St. Neots sounds more like "Snoots" than anything else. Cirencester seems to vary from "Sister" to "Sizeter." In Suffolk Waldringfield is "Wunnerful" and Chelmondiston "Chimston," while in the adjoining county of Norfolk Hunstanton is "Hunston," and in the west country Badgeworthy is "Badgery" and Cornwood "Kernood." Huntingdonshire claims the purest English, but they call Papworth "Parpor." And not far from there a motorist turned upon a rough road and asked the intelligent laborers where it would take him. "That road," said the honest countryman, wiping his brow, "will take you to Ell, sir." The courageous motorist went on and found Ellsworth, which is pronounced "Elser."—Manchester Guardian.

Fruitful Combination.

In New York a new teacher found that a little negro girl was named Fertilizer Johnson.

"Are you sure Fertilizer is your right name?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the little girl.

"Well, tell your mother to come here," said the teacher.

The mother came the next day.

"Yes, Fertilizer is right," she said. "You see, I named her after her father and mother both. Her father's name is Ferdinand, and my name is Liza, so we called her Fertilizer."—New York Globe.

Her Reason.

The beautiful girl was writing a letter.

"I am writing," she mused, "not because I have something special to say, but because I have nothing special to do."

Our First Theater.

In 1752 the first theater in the United States was opened in the colony of Virginia at old Williamsburg. The originator was an English actor, William Hallam, Sr., who brought his own company from over seas and presented "The Merchant of Venice" as the initial performance. The idea spread rapidly, and soon New York, Philadelphia and the other leading communities of colonial America each had its theater. While the Virginia playhouse was the first in the United States, actors had played in the colonies before this date. The first is said to have been the English strolling player, Anthony Aston, who was known as Mat Medley. The actor and his art of that day were generally despised by the Puritanical colonists. The Massachusetts legislature passed a law shortly after amateurs had given "The Orphans" at the Coffee House in Boston in 1749 which forbade such performances, prescribing a penalty for actors and spectators alike of $25 each.

Evolution of a Name.

Cosmo Innes, in his work on surnames, quotes an instance showing the gradual transformation of a patronymic. "A respectable citizen of Dublin named Halfpenny threve in trade, so his children prevailed on him in his latter years to change the name, which they thought undignified, and this he did chiefly by dropping the last letter. He died and was buried as Mr. Halpen. The fortune of the family did not recede, and the son of our citizen thought proper to renounce retail dealing, and at the same time looked about for a euphonious change of name. He made no scruple of dropping the unnecessary 'h.' That being done, it was easy to go into the Celtic rage, which 'The Lady of the Lake' had just raised to a great height. So he who had run the streets as little Kenny Halfpenny came out at the levees as Kenneth McAlpin, the descendant of a hundred kings."—London Chronicle.

Diplomacy.

When King Alfonso of Spain is staying at San Sebastian, says the Manchester News, he frequently goes across to Biarritz for an afternoon of recreation.

On one occasion he arrived at the station there and hailed a fiacre. The driver recognized him, and when his majesty asked what the fare was said, "For the king of Spain it will be 10 francs." The king smiled and merely paid the ordinary fare as provided by the tariff. To that amount, however, he added a tip of the usual size.

A few days later he was again in Biarritz and also took a fiacre. But on this occasion the cocher was more diplomatic. When asked the amount of the fare he replied, "Your majesty owes me nothing for the small service I have had the honor to render him." His majesty replied to this courteous speech by presenting the cabby with a 100 franc note.

Bricks From Babylon.

There is a law in the Turkish empire prohibiting the exportation of relics and antiques more than 100 years old, and the fact that it is on the statute books gives rise to the common practice of offering spurious articles to the tourist. Real objects of art or of sufficient age to be of value are rarely to be purchased, and the general desire of the visitor, therefore, seems to be to obtain stones or pieces of clay from the sites of ancient ruins or bricks with inscriptions. The former can probably be obtained, but they are practically valueless, as one piece of clay from Babylon is quite like another from Musol. Bricks from either of these places that are known to be genuine are unobtainable.

With Military Honors.

It is not universally known what is meant by a funeral "with full military honors." In such a funeral the coffin is borne on a gun carriage.

If the dead soldier was an infantryman his sword and helmet rest on his coffin.

At the funeral of a cavalry soldier his sword and helmet are fastened to the saddle of his horse, which is led immediately behind the gun carriage, and his top boots, with spurs attached, are fastened in the stirrups, with the toes pointing backward.

A firing party, drawn, if possible, from the deceased's regiment, fire three volleys over the grave, and the "Last Post" is then sounded by buglers.—Pearson's Weekly.

Our Moral Codes.

Our moral codes were invented not to prepare men for heaven or for Utopia. They were invented by men who were none too good themselves to protect themselves from people who were not much worse. There are great differences in human beings as to the amount of knowledge and wisdom which they possess, but there is small difference in regard to the amount of goodness or rascality that they manifest.—Mowry Saben in Forum.

All human things of dearest value hang on slender strings.—Edmund Waller.

The Black Bear.

It is the common idea that a black bear will hug people to death. This is, of course, a mistake. A bear almost invariably makes its attack by striking a stunning blow with the fore paw and tearing with his very formidable claws. A large black bear can strike a terrific blow and is capable of knocking down and mortally wounding a full grown caribou. When their enemy or prey is felled to the ground they usually bite them about the head and neck until death ensues. They are remarkable for the strength of their jaws and have been known to bite through the skull of a man. Many animals that can generally be counted on not to attack man do so when come upon suddenly, crowded, wounded or annoyed. The black bear is no exception. The more I see and study animals the more I am impressed with the fact that there is no fixed rule what the same species of animal will do under similar circumstances, as they seem to vary as much in mind and temperament as the individual. Although one might predict with a very good average of correctness, there would always be the exception.—"Big Game Fields of America."

On Having the Blues.

If without any real cause of worry, says a writer in the Unpopular Review, you wake up two or three consecutive mornings feeling that the world is an unsatisfactory place probably you had better go to the doctor. He won't be apt to give you anything worse than rhubarb and soda. You might even try it before going, and if it is a sunny day try to glory in it out of doors if possible, and if it is a rainy day try to thing how cozy it will be by the fire, or if you have to go to an office how good it will be to have a day for steady work, when clients and customers are not apt to come in.

In similar vein Kipling prescribed for a case of the blues, which he referred to as a "camelelious hump," you remember, common to "kiddies and grownups too." When the bump rests heavily upon you, said Mr. Kipling—

Don't frowst with a book by the fire,
But take a large hoe and a shovel also,
And dig till you gently perspire.

What He Wanted.

Arthur H. Engelbach in his collection of anecdotes of the bench tells this story about Lord Braxfield, who was among the last of the Scotch judges who rigidly adhered to the broad Scotch dialect.

"Ha'e ye ony counsel, mon?" he said to Maurice Margot when placed at the bar.

"No," was the reply.

"Do ye want to ha'e ony appointit?" continued the judge.

"No," said Margot. "I only want an interpreter to make me understand what your lordship says."

EAST BETHLEHEM ALMOST DOUBLES ITS POPULATION

The report of Thomas Doyle, the commissioner appointed by the court to take the census of East Bethlehem township, shows that the township has almost doubled its population since the United States census of 1910, when there were 1,929 people in that district. Mr. Doyle's census shows that the present population is 3,718, a gain of 1,789 in five years.

A first-class township is proposed, though there is some objection from the Sandy Plains region.

DIAMOND COAL AND COKE CO. TAKE OVER BLAINE MINE TODAY

Million Dollar Purchase Consumated At Elizabeth Within Past Week—Presages Much Activity.

Today is the day for the taking over of the Blaine mine at Elizabeth by the Diamond Coal company, the purchase of the mine having been consummated last week. The price is said to have been $1,000,000.

The Blaine mine is one of the most productive and prosperous along the river and has been running almost steadily. The Diamond Coal and Coke company purchased the workings outright and about 600 acres of coal are included in the deal. This is one of the largest coal deals consummated in recent years in the valley, and is indicative in a sense of better times to come in the Monongahela valley mining circles.

CALLED ON GOVERNOR

Labor Men Discuss Compensation With Brumbaugh.

Harrisburg, Feb. 9.—When a committee of labor men called on Governor Brumbaugh at the executive mansion and asked that he support a workmen's compensation law modeled after the Ohio act, the governor stated that there are three elements that should be given consideration above everything else.

"First," he said, "to enact a law that would make compensation positive without any possibility of an employer avoiding the liability; second, to expedite payments and prevent litigation in the courts, and, third, to conserve life and limb by making the employer put in adequate safety devices, thereby preventing accidents and the necessity of paying compensation.

In connection with this third element, Governor Brumbaugh commented as follows: "Gentlemen, you of course recognize the fact that it is far better that the state prevent accidents through good laws than to merely provide compensation to a man when injured. Better that he be not injured at all."

There were forty-eight labor men in this delegation, and it is the first time that so many toilers visited the executive mansion in a body. When the governor entered the room he said to his visitors: "Gentlemen, make yourself at home; this is not my house any more than it is yours. I'm but a temporary occupant."

What a Dreadnought Costs.

Some idea of the fighting power of a Dreadnought may be gathered from the fact that the extreme range of its guns is twenty-five miles, while they can be very effective at a range of twelve miles. They are most deadly, however, at a range of between five or six miles.

The twelve inch gun of a Dreadnought is fifty feet long and if set up on end would be higher than many a country church tower. The cost of each gun is about £10,000, while each time it is fired £100 vanishes into the air.

As a protection against the guns of the enemy a Dreadnought is covered with armor costing £120 per ton, and as something like 4,500 tons are used in covering the vessel this means an expenditure of close upon £600,000

Boilers and machinery at £225,000, motor and steamboats at £8,000, torpedo tubes at £3,000 each and torpedoes at £700 each, and £30,000 for searchlights and electrical fittings are other items in the bill which go to make a Dreadnought the costliest vessel afloat.—Pearson's.

Bees and the Kilt.

In his book, "Forty-one Years in India," Lord Roberts tells the following amusing story:

"A curious incident happened at the Alambagh. I was employed inside the inclosure when all at once I heard a noise and commotion some little distance off. Getting on to the roof, I looked over the plain and saw our troops flying in every direction. There was no firing, no enemy in sight, but evidently something was wrong; so I mounted my horse and rode to the scene of confusion, where I found that the ignominious flight of our troops was caused by infuriated bees, which had been disturbed by an officer of the Ninth lancers thoughtlessly thrusting a lance into their nest. There were no serious consequences, but the highlanders were heard to remark on the unsuitability of their dress for an encounter with an enemy of that description."

A Tinker Inspired Wagner.

A tinker has established himself opposite our house and stunned my ears all day long with his incessant hammering. In my disgust at never being able to find a detached house protected from every kind of noise I was on the point of deciding to give up composing altogether until the time when this indispensable condition should be fulfilled. But it was precisely my rage over the tinker that, in a moment of agitation, gave me the theme for Siegfried's furious outburst against the bungling Mime. I played over the childishly quarrelsome Polter theme in G minor to my sister, furiously singing the words at the same time, which made us all laugh so much that I decided to make one more effort. This resulted in my writing down a good part of the first scene by the time Liszt arrived. Oct. 13 (1856).—Richard Wagner in His Autobiography

Recreation and Mental Disease.

The problem of fatigue and its relation to efficiency is becoming more and more appreciated in our industrial institutions, so much so, indeed, that we may truthfully say that, in the United States at least, the art of work is being mastered to a degree little short of perfection. Not so much can be said with reference to our mastery of the art of play. Let us not forget that the art of play presents an important problem which requires serious effort for its solution. Relaxation from the stress and tension of modern American city life means much for our future physical, mental and moral health and efficiency. This is a tired nation, perhaps the most tired nation on earth.—New York Medical Journal.

British Life Guards.

England's famous life guards were organized just after the restoration. They were recruited from the old cavaliers who fought for Prince Charles Stuart, and in 1661 they were formed into three troops, then known as the King's Own, the Duke of York's and the Duke of Albemarle's. At that time it was always demanded that one troop should be raised in Scotland in honor of the house of Stuart.—London Tit Bits.

One Way to Use a Poultice.

"Did that onion poultice I sent you do you any good?"

"Did me a heap of good."

"These external applications are often efficacious."

"I applied it internally. The onions smelled so good that I ate it."—Kansas City Journal.

Horse Sense.

The phrase "horse sense" was discussed in class, and the teacher told one of the boys to write a sentence containing that phrase. The boy labored for ten minutes and produced this. "My father didn't lock the barn door, and he ain't seen the horse sense."

Peter the Great.

What Alfred the Great is to early Britain that Peter the Great, in his crude way, is to Russia. If ever a race of people found adequate expression in one person that race was the Slavic race in their great czar.—Century Magazine.

Hardy Ants.

Ants can stand extremes of heat or cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in the chinks in a blacksmith's forge.

Hope springs exulting on triumphant wing.—Burns.

ANCIENT GREEK TRAINING.

What It Did For the Boy Physically and Intellectually.

The manner in which the Athenians brought up their children is worth remembering.

At seven years of age the Athenian lad entered the gymnasium, which was essentially a playground. All the first and better half of the day was spent in gymnastics, dancing, games and play. In the afternoon there were singing, some writing, some reading, all in the open air, and then came a long period of play again. Such was the schooling of the Greek lad up to the age of ten or eleven, and it did not differ essentially up to the age of sixteen, except in the severity of the exercises.

And yet the world has not ceased to marvel at the results of the Greek education. It produced the highest type of man, physically and intellectually, that the world has ever seen, which Galton says was as far in advance of the modern Englishman as the modern Englishman is in advance of the native African.

In physical beauty, courage and patriotism, in philosophy, literature, architecture and art, the Greeks have been the unsurpassed models of the ages and are still the inspiration of our schools today. But they placed the emphasis upon hygiene, exercise, games and play, which are too much neglected in these days.—Kansas City Star.

THE PLANET MERCURY.

It Is Difficult to Weigh, and Its Orbit Is Very Eccentric.

Though Mercury is one of the smallest of the planets, it is perhaps the most troublesome of all to the astronomer.

It lies so close to the sun that it is seen but seldom in comparison with the other great planets. Its orbit is very eccentric, and it experiences disturbances by the attraction of other bodies in a way not yet fully understood.

A special difficulty has also been found in the attempt to place Mercury in the weighing scales. We can weigh the whole earth, we can weigh the sun, the moon and even Jupiter and other planets, but Mercury presents difficulties of a peculiar character. Le Verrier, however, succeeded in devising a method of weighing it.

He demonstrated that our earth is attracted by this planet, and he showed how the amount of attraction may be disclosed by observations of the sun, so that from an examination of the observations he made an approximate determination of the mass of Mercury.

Le Verrier's result indicated that the weight of the planet was about the fifteenth part of the weight of the earth. In other words, if our earth was placed in a balance and fifteen globes, each equal to Mercury, were laid in the other the scales would hang evenly.—"Story of the Heavens."

Spain's Arbitration Court.

"The most unique and interesting institution for the settlement of civil suits in Spain," writes Thomas W. Palmer, Jr., in Case and Comment, "is the arbitration court. All contentious or disputes before or after the commencement of litigation, no matter how far advanced can be submitted to an arbitration tribunal by agreement of all the interested parties. The exceptions to this are those suits involving political and civil rights, etc., or those matters in which the state is especially concerned. The arbitrators, whose number must not exceed five, are lawyers of twenty-five or more years of age and in full enjoyment of civil rights. In some instances the arbitrators may be laymen (amigables componedores). Appeal is made from the arbitration direct to the territorial appeal court. This method of deciding claims has proved successful and is employed considerably."

Speculative Life Insurance.

A mania for speculative insurances on the lives of public personages prevailed in England during the eighteenth century. Warren Hastings, the pretender, the rebel lord or the unfortunate Admiral Byng answered equally the purpose of speculation, and there were also regular quotations on the lives of notorious highwaymen. Sir Robert Walpole at one period of his career, when his life was endangered by popular tumults, was insured for many thousands, and when George II. fought at Dettingen 25 per cent was paid against his return. Such speculative insurances were, however, largely checked by the gambling act of 1774, which made insurable interest a necessary condition for a valid policy.

He Knew.

The professor of the class in English history was telling his young men of the impressionable age about the Elizabethan era when, suddenly turning to one of the young men, who seemed to be in a dream, with a faraway gaze, he said:

"And how old was Elizabeth, Mr. Case?"

"Eighteen last birthday," came the instant reply.

The Largest Reptile.

The largest existent reptile is the man eating salt water crocodile of southern Asia and Australia, which, when full grown, measures thirty feet in length from end of nose to tip of tail. One man makes hardly more than a mouthful for this fearsome creature.

She Knew It.

He—Didn't it ever occur to you that I was in love with you? She—Certainly; haven't you ever noticed me laughing to myself?—Topeka Journal.

STATE TREASURY ENRICHED THROUGH VEHICLE LICENSES

Automobile Fund Passes Million Mark Denoting Increase in Numbers of Autos.

The automobile fund for 1915 has passed the million dollar mark in receipts with a record. It never came within reach of a million until last year, when it went over the mark some time in May. The fund did not get over $900,000 in the whole of 1913.

The great growth of the fund illustrates the increase in the number of automobiles in the State and if the manner in which licenses have been put out thus far means anything next year will see about $2,000,000.

The income from the motor license is being held in a separate fund for the maintenance of State highways.
